Description

The West Virginia Practice Based Research Network (WVPBRN), part of the Community Engagement and Outreach Core of the West Virginia Clinical and Translational Science Institute (WVCTSI), is the first-ever practice based research network in the state. The mission of the WVPBRN is to improve the health of West Virginians by collaborating with primary care practices to conduct translational practice-based research. While a developing network, the WVPBRN has already become a multi-site, multi-county entity which is well-positioned to have a significant, positive impact on priority health disparities. This occurs through practice-driven research addressing local, regional, and state-wide priority areas. William Lewis, MD, provider at Harper's Ferry Family Medicine, and Jennifer Boyd, PA-C, provider at New River Health Association, direct these efforts. The WVPBRN also receives vision and guidance from its Steering Committee, while the Protocol Review Committee evaluates research submissions for relevance to the network membership and feasibility in terms of being applicable research in primary care.

Prior to the WVCTSI funding, West Virginia was one of a handful of states that had no PBRN to serve as a platform for engaging rural primary care practitioners in practice-based research. Extensive partner engagement has resulted in a Network with 73 clinical sites, 9 organizational partners, and over 13 completed and 19 ongoing projects addressing cardiovascular disease, cancer, neuroscience, and emerging epidemics. Critically, 88% of sites have participated in projects.
